McCann Replaces Caddas As Fulton High Menfor

Frank McCann, a graduate of University of Tennessee (Martin Branch) and former assistant coach at Greenwood, S. C., has been named head football and basketball coach at Fulton High School, it was announced today.

The appointment came at a called meeting of the Fulton Board of Education last week. McCann replaces Chester Caddas, who resigned to accept a head football coaching job at Danville.

Caddas will resume his new duties at Danville on Aug. 1 after serving as the leader here for the past three seasons.

During this time he has led one basketball team to the state tournament at Lexington, and another to the finals in the regional tournament at Murray.

His football record during his stay here totals 17 games won, 12 lost, and one tied.

Caddas has been one of the most popular members of the Fulton High faculty, well-liked by both students and fans.

In addition to his coaching duties, Caddas has been teaching biology and physical education. This summer he taught the driver's training course sponsored by Fulton Lion's Club.

Mrs. Caddas taught for one year at South Fulton, and has given swimming and lifesaving instructions at Willow Plunge Pool.

Mr. and Mrs. Caddas have been making their home in Hillcrest Sub-division with their three children, Lynn, 6, Christopher 4, and Rachel, one month. They are members of the Smith St. Church of Christ.

The school board here also named Bobby Ware, a current student teacher at Murray State College, as assistant coach. Virgil Yates was earlier appointed as an assistant.

McCann has been acting as assistant coach under Caddas and was moved up to the head position, where he will also teach physical education and health.

McCann attended the University of North Carolina before transferring to Martin, where he was graduated in 1962. He was a member of the Martin football team.

Famous Artist, Naturalist To Visit State Parks On Week-ends; At Dam August 2-3

Ray Harm, Berea, wildlife artist and naturalist, has been hired by the Kentucky Department of Parks as an artist and lecturer for special weekend programs, Edward V. Fox, parks commissioner, has announced.

The agreement with the widely known painter is a result of the department's efforts to offer quality and variety in the recreation program of the parks, Charles Spears, parks recreation director said.

First of the weekend series by Harm will start Friday night at Natural Bridge State Park, Slade.

At each weekend session, Friday night will be "Meet Ray Harm Night." The program, starting at 7:30 p. m., will include painting, nature study, and interpretation.

On Saturday morning, those participating will go on hikes or guided nature walks with Harm.

From Saturday noon on, the program will be geared to fit the desires of the persons attending the first two meetings.

Harm, a 36-year-old native of the West Virginia mountain country, was reared near Elkins. His background includes training show horses for circus performances, dude ranching, Wild West shows, cowboy work, and music.

He learned his work in the wide open spaces under the stars as well as in the mountain areas in which he has located his family.

He and the members of his family—wife Carmella, daughters Barbara Jo, 14, and Linda, 11, and son Ray, Jr., 9—have entertained many gatherings with their folk singing.

On January 1, Harm became the first Herman L. Donovan artist in residence at the University of Kentucky. This is the first award made from the fund donated by the U. K. president emeritus from the income off his farm, near Richmond.

His schedule through August, after this weekend's inaugural at Natural Bridge is:

August 2-3 — Kentucky Dam Village State Park, Gilbertsville.

August 9-11 — Pine Mountain State Park, Pineville.

August 16-17 — Audubon State Park, Henderson.

August 23-24 — Carter Caves State Park, Olive Hill.

Fulton County May Get Help For Drought

Congressman Frank Albert Stubblefield has urged Secretary of Agriculture Freeman to declare the drought-stricken counties in Western Kentucky as a disaster area so farmers in these counties will be able to graze livestock and harvest hay on land retired from production under the Conservation Reserve and Feed Grain programs.

Kentucky Gov. Combs earlier contacted Secretary Freeman and requested this declaration. The eleven counties of the First District involved are Ballard, Caldwell, Carlisle, Cynthiana, Fulton, Graves, Hickman, Marshall, and Livingston.

Even if you have previously had the Salk shots for polio, the Sabin vaccine is necessary. Salk vaccine provides individual immunity, but an individual can still be a polio carrier without the Sabin vaccine.

Every man, woman and child is urged to take the three doses of vaccine. It is tasteless and free from any after-effects. If everybody gets his lumps, doctors believe polio can be banished from the community.

The purpose of a mass campaign is to blot out the disease all at once. The greater the number of people taking part, the better the chances are of giving the community complete immunity.

After the wedding, the bride is just as happy to skip the many heart rending sessions in the popcorn jungle as the groom.

The difference in their divergencies is he doesn't plan to go back to the movies, EVER, and after a year or so the little wife would like to get out again among the Pecks, Sinatras, Hestons, Days, Dees, and Douglasses.

Actually, it is not the movie in itself. A wife just like to get OUT. Her best line is to play on her husband's sentimentality and suggest that they play like they are dating and go to a movie.

This works occasionally, but don't count on it over once a year. Say anniversary time.

Or, a wife can simply say, "There really is a good show on tonight. Don't you want to go?"

I do not know what responses other wives get to this one, but Mr. W's standard reply is, "I'll be glad to baby sit and you get some of the girls to go with you."

I know he is desperate because show going is the only thing he had rather baby sit than do.

By girls he means women my age. This is a fallacy that children cannot comprehend until they are adults. In any given group of women, contemporaries are referred to as girls even if the covey be 100 years old.

It would sound utterly ridiculous for men to refer to themselves as boys. They have more sense, and less vanity for youth, God bless 'em.

Back to the movies, where we were trying to go in the first place.

I do not want to go with the girls. If I wanted to go with women I would attend the matinee. I just want to go out for an evening with my husband. This is the national anthem of American females.

It is uncanny, but the few times I have cajoled Mr. W. into taking me to the movies they were absolutely terrible. They were so nil they made me sick, and a movie has to get pretty bad before I will stop watching.

Fulton County High School Damaged When Teen-Agers Go On Drinking Spree

A teen-age drinking spree has brought stiff disciplinary penalties to five under sixteen year old boys, and a fine and jail sentence to Jerry Dean Guthrie, 19 of Hickman. The beer-drinking episode has also brought about a charge of violating the law to Joe T. Johnson for selling alcoholic beverages to minors. It brought about the destruction of about 35 windows in the Fulton County High School which were used for target practice while the boys were imbibing on the school grounds.

Here's the story:

According to information on record in the office of Fulton County Judge J. C. Bondurant, six boys, went to the Johnson Liquor Store in Hickman and bought a case of beer. They proceeded to the school grounds to consume the beer they admittedly purchased from Mr. Johnson. In the course of the evening the boys began throwing rocks and beer cans at the windows causing damage to the school estimated at approximately $80.00.

Apprehended by Sheriff Joe Campbell the boys were tried in quarterly court on Friday. They signed affidavits stating that they had purchased the beer at the Hickman store.

Charges against Mr. Johnson are still pending. However, the News learned that County Attorney James Amberg plans to dismiss the charges against Mr. Johnson and lodge them against Mrs. Will Ella Johnson, his wife, in whose name the liquor store is licensed.

Meanwhile State Alcoholic Beverage Field Agent Carmi Page informed the News that all information connected with the apprehension of the boys will be sent to the ABC Department in Frankfort for punitive action against the licensee, perhaps a suspension of operations or revocation of the license.

The five youths, have been released to the custody of their parents with these conditions:

That they attend the Sunday School and Church of their choice each Sunday;

That they be at home before nine o'clock each evening;

That they report each month to the Department of Welfare service worker;

And that they pay for the cost of repairing the school windows out of their personal earnings.

Guthrie was fined $100.00 and costs and lodged in the County Jail for three days. The trial for the Johnsons is scheduled to be heard before Judge Bondurant at Hickman on Monday.

Hassle-Over Chief's Salary Not Yet Over; More Talk August 12

The pay case of Police Chief Jean (Duck) Smith is due further action by the present city commission.

The commission Monday night threw out an ordinance adopted last week that would cut Smith's pay from $400 to $325 a month effective Dec. 31.

Then, the commission decided to take Smith's pay case up again on August 12.

Mayor Gilbert DeMyer expressed regret to Commissioner Bob McCain that he (the mayor) had not allowed a motion made by McCain to come up for a vote last week. The McCain motion would have reduced the chief's pay to $325 a month, effective Sept. 1. In the confusion of last week's hassle over the pay issue, the mayor apparently overlooked McCain's motion. The mayor, a little later, introduced a motion setting the Dec. 31 deadline and it was approved.

Commissioner Bill Rice, who had seconded McCain's motion last week, was not present this week.

DeMyer said public opinion appears to be that Smith is liked as a police chief but that his salary is too high. Commissioner Charles Bennett said he finds the public approves of last week's action. Commissioner Clarence Moline said he favors leaving Smith's salary at its present rate.

The decision to rescind the recent ordinance involving the police chief's pay came on the advice of City Attorney Brantley Amberg. He advised the commission that the action was illegal since the McCain motion had been skipped over.

In other action at Monday's meeting, the Mayor and Commissioners:

—Voted to begin semi-monthly meetings for the remainder of the year, with the next regular meeting scheduled for August 12;

—Appropriated $1500 for a street maintenance program and encouraged their successors next year to continue on the same basis for the next four years so that needed repairs can be effected;

Brother Of
John Simrell
Painfully Hurt

The condition of his brother is reported to be as well as could be expected, John Simrell, president of Jiffy Manufacturing Company, said today. Robert Benjamin Simrell, 49, who lives just off the Union City-Fulton highway, was thrown from his car when it plunged down a fifteen foot embankment and turned over early Sunday morning.

The injured man is under treatment at the Obion County General Hospital. He reportedly suffered a concussion and laceration of his head, arms and other parts of the body.

State Patrolman Paul T. English said Mr. Simrell was driving a 1951 Pontiac toward Union City, apparently on his way home, when the accident occurred on Highway 22. He lay injured and undiscovered for perhaps four hours.

Mayor DeMyer's Ill-Tempered Conduct At Commission Meeting Further Stalemates Progress

If ever you get to the point in your life where you get discouraged with your lot in life, don't despair. Be consoled by the fact that you're not a newspaper editor. You can make yourself even happier when you realize that it does not fall within your duty to cover the meetings of the City Commission.

Last week, other commitments made it impossible for this writer to attend the session, so the other member of our family "covered" the proceedings. When the story of the meeting was put on our desk for a headline it was so written as to indicate that the meeting was calm and business-like; a striking departure from the usual fiasco that has occurred at most sessions since our City Manager form of government went into effect.

It was not until later that we learned that the News representative wrote the story with an apparent attitude of disgust and discouragement; influenced perhaps by the old saying that the less said the better. Unfortunately, last week's meeting could not be handled in that manner, for the issue of whether a private citizen has the right to question public action was the matter at hand.

It is possible that Mayor Gilbert DeMyer had some legal ground to stand on in refusing Dr. C. H. Myers the right to ask a question of the Commission while they were in legislative session. We have been to enough meetings to know that such questions and expressions of opinion can get way out of hand. But under no circumstances do we think the Mayor had any right to be so irascible, ill-tempered, arrogant and caustic in his remarks to a citizen and a taxpayer.

In the past, other citizens have asked to be recognized during deliberative sessions of the Commission, and the Mayor has similarly refused them. But he has not done so in the manner that would indicate the Mayor considers himself the ultimate in authority and impeccable in the decisions he has made for the welfare of his constituents.

It occurs to us that Mayor DeMyer was another of those political candidates whose campaign oratory included such promises that "all citizens will be given an opportunity to be heard so that they may have a voice in the affairs of their government." We have come to believe that the only time a citizen's opinions are valued is during a political campaign. The candidate listens to him, agrees with him, and promises that the minute he gets into office, if he is elected, the action offered will be first on the agenda.

This may not be true in all cases, but it is most nearly, isn't it?

Governor Bert T. Combs is perhaps one of those rare exceptions. You well know that the present leader of Kentucky's State Government didn't think that his aides were giving him the unadulterated truth about what people were thinking out in the hinterlands, so the Governor took the Government to them. There were those who said, facetiously that the Governor should take State Government to Frankfort, but they know they were only joshing. A public official is a better public official when he opens his mind to suggestions and divergent opinions.

What Mayor DeMyer, and the entire Commission ought to know right now is that never has the esprits de corps and morale of Fulton citizens been so low. The disgraceful conduct of certain public officials has so discouraged and embarrassed the respectable citizens of Fulton that any community wide project is frowned upon. City employees, trying desperately to do a decent job do so almost dejectedly, not knowing when their positions will be slashed and obliterated at the personal whim of an office-holder.

The sad attitude has permeated some of the communications media in the city as well. We look to the future not with hope of advancement, but with foreboding that many competent employees are only biding their time until they can get out of the hopeless entanglement in which Fulton now finds itself.

'Tis said that a chain is only as strong as its weakest link. Today we find ourselves with the chain of command in our city government with so many weak links that the pulling power toward city progress and development is stalemated and at a hopeless impasse.

Candidate Louie Nunn Out Of Step With His Backers On Matter Of Public Accommodations

The (Morganfield) Advocate has expressed opposition to Governor Bert Combs' executive order banning discrimination in public accommodations. We still contend that he usurped the authority of the Legislature; that the Chief Executive should execute the laws and not make them.

We are, however, unimpressed with Republican Louie Nunn's sudden interest in the subject of public accommodations. His charge, in a speech at Sturgis, that Combs "deceived the people," is utterly ridiculous. There was no deception involved. The order was there for all to see. And Nunn's further charge that the order "was a desperate move by Combs to help elect his handpicked candidate," is even more ridiculous. The consensus of opinion in political circles indicates that the Governor pulled a boner in issuing the order.

As far as deception is concerned Nunn is nothing less than vulnerable.

At the time of the executive order both Nunn and Breathitt, appearing before a group at Danville, agreed that the subject of public accommodations should not be a political issue. Yet, at Sturgis, Nunn used the subject as the main theme of his speech, but was careful not to state his own position.

Actually, Nunn is in no position to be other than for a public accommodations law. His two principal advisors—Senator John Sherman Cooper and Louisville Mayor William Cowger—are strong advocates of no discrimination in public accommodations. Cooper is the co-sponsor of a public accommodations bill in the Senate, and Cowger had his Board of Aldermen enact such a law in Louisville.

Mayor Cowger even went along with the Combs order, calling it "wonderful," and the Kentucky Governor drew similar praise from Senator Cooper. Cooper and Cowger were two of the very few persons who maneuvered Nunn into the Republican nomination without opposition.

Nunn certainly cannot afford to be out of tune with the Louisville Cowger Republican machine. This powerful organization is the one group that gives to him what little hope he might have of winning in November.

100 Years Ago This Week

An historical review of the Civil War day by day in Kentucky, as reviewed by the Kentucky Civil War Commission.

By JOE JORDAN

One hundred years ago this week Brig. Gen. John H. Morgan and 335 officers and men, a remnant of the Third Confederate Cavalry Division, surrendered near Salineville in Columbiana County, Ohio, thus bringing to an end Morgan's celebrated Indiana-Ohio Raid. In 25 days, including the day Morgan's command of 2,460 crossed the Cumberland River at Burkesville, Ky., and started riding north through enemy-held country and including also the day of surrender, Morgan and those who were captured with him had marched more than 1,000 miles behind enemy lines while more than 100,000 Union soldiers joined in one phase or another of a massive effort to catch them.

Morgan negotiated the surrender with an Ohio militia officer, Capt. James Burbeck, who rather naively granted generous terms suggested by Morgan, including provisions that all the Confederates were to be paroled, that both officers and men could keep their horses and the officers could retain their sidearms. The bargain was repudiated by Brig. Gen. James M. Shackelford of Kentucky, the senior Union Army officer in the vicinity, as soon as he arrived.

Col. Frank Wolford, commander of the First Kentucky (Union) Cavalry regiment, who had been in close pursuit of Morgan the whole way, attempted to argue with Gen. Shackelford that the terms granted by the militia captain should be honored, but he was overruled. In May of 1862, Col. Wolford had been taken prisoner by Morgan's men at Lebanon, Tenn., and Morgan, observing that Wolford had been wounded and was so weak from loss of blood that he was about to fall out of his saddle, had released him.

Up to this point of the Ohio surrender squabble, Morgan was still wearing his sword. When Gen. Shackelford canceled the agreement that the Confederate officers were to retain their sidearms, Morgan surrendered his sword to Wolford and also gave him a pair of silver spurs that admiring friends in Morgan's home town of Lexington had presented to him earlier in the war. When Shackelford also repudiated the agreement that the Confederates could keep their horses, Morgan gave his horse to Union Major George W. Rue of Harrodsburg, Ky., with whom he had been conversing pleasantly before Shackelford arrived on the scene.

Gen. Shackelford designated Col. Wolford to take charge of the prisoners. That gave Wolford another chance to demonstrate his chivalrous ideas about the proper way to treat enemy soldiers whose fighting qualities he had come to respect in previous encounters. He escorted Morgan and his officers to the hotel at Wells-ville, Ohio, and directed the management to feed them well. Before leaving the Confederates there unguarded but on their honor not to escape, he said to them: "Gentlemen, you are my guests. This hotel, together with its bar, cigar stand and other accessories, is at your service and at my expenses. Do not go off the square in front of the hotel."

GOD Is A Good God

By Willis Hicks

A few weeks ago I read an article about a religious crusade in Australia. I was astounded to find that even the newspapers in both Sydney and Melbourne, Australia, are so violently opposed to God and the term "freedom of speech." Reporters "slinked" around like a wolf pack waiting to devour a lamb. One reporter confessed, "We are not writing what we want to write, but what we are told to write." Time and space will not permit the heart-breaking story of how a man of God was persecuted and tormented by the foul puppets of communism and finally forced to leave or die. There were, of course, many people who were ashamed of the criminal attack against someone trying to help a lost people.

Recently I read another article that seemed to bring Australia to our back door. The above mentioned evangelist, Oral Roberts, began a crusade in Florida. And, here in the United States, in the great land of America, it started again. In Miami a group of atheists tried to "break up" the crusade. They used the press, radio and television in their vicious, dastardly efforts to quell the movement of God's spirit in the crusade.

The poor unlearned, unbelieving group of rabble-rousers tried to have Bro. Roberts put in jail on a charge of practicing medicine without a license. Since Bro.

Roberts also gives advice, why didn't they make him buy a license to practice law?

I am sure that Rev. Oral Roberts expects to be persecuted and humiliated as he goes throughout the world following the footsteps of Christ. And, since they, the people that God created, killed the prophets, crucified Jesus and had the disciples put to death, why should they listen to Rev. Oral Roberts?

From the dust of the earth God made a perfect man. From this man the devil made a miserable world full of murderers and violent men. God sent prophets, these were killed! God sent Jesus. He was hanged on a cross, and still God loves people! Four times in the 107th chapter of Psalms the following verse is repeated, "Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for His wonderful works to the children of men!" Yet in Revelation 21:8 a verse appears only once and it is sufficient warning to the entire world. He cares enough to warn his people, "God is a Good God."

Administration Leaders Satisfied With Laws Enacted During Assembly Session

The Combs administration was satisfied with the three pieces of legislation the general assembly enacted in a 16-day special session.

The Eastern Kentucky hospital bill, Gov. Bert Combs' principal reason for calling the extraordinary session, glided through both the House and Senate with a minimum of trouble.

The parole reform bill also coasted to approval, despite a last-minute threat by House Republicans.

And the joint resolution ratifying the anti-poll tax amendment to the U. S. Constitution was passed routinely.

The only discordant note, an administration spokesman said, was the 41-10 House vote for a resolution condemning the Supreme Court for banning required Bible reading and prayer in public schools.

There was a brief, unorganized attempt to try to rescind the resolution, which has no force of law, but the bustle of impending adjournment broke it up.

Combs signed the hospital bill. "The legislature acted promptly and wisely in resolving a critical situation. This legislation will be a symbol of continued progress in Eastern Kentucky," he said.

The governor also signed the anti-poll tax resolution and is expected to sign the parole reform measure within 10 days.

The hospital bill assured continued operation of institutions at McDowell, Harlan, Hazard, Middlesboro and Whitesburg which the United Mine Workers planned to close this summer.

A non-profit corporation has received a $3.9 million federal grant from the Area Redevelopment Administration to buy the hospitals. The corporation, formed by the United Presbyterian Church, has filed its charter with the secretary of state.

Under the bill, the state allows such corporations to operate regional hospitals and appropriate $700,000 in the next fiscal year for non-paying patients who otherwise would drain the hospitals' finance resources.

Sponsors acknowledged the measure is designed only for the emergency in Eastern Kentucky. But, they said it is constitutional and can be revised later as conditions dictate.

Congressman Carl Perkins, D-Hindman, looked on as Combs signed the bill.

The parole bill, approved by senators who hardly had time to look over printed copies, was headed for trouble in the House during the last days of the session.

Combs appeared at a Democratic caucus reportedly to deny a report the administration did not favor the measure.

The final House vote was 66-20, with 17 votes against it coming from the Republican minority.

The bill increases the parole board from three to five members and raises all members' salaries by $2,000 a year. It appropriates $125,000 to upgrade parole personnel and does away with present parole eligibility laws.

The board now would decide when a prisoner is eligible for parole.

Combs added two other topics when he expanded his original call—a proposal to allow the Kentucky Turnpike Authority to refund bonds ahead of maturity and to allow colleges to lease land to private sources in return for rental payments for educational purposes.

The turnpike proposal never was introduced. The lease bill was redrafted to restrict the process only to motels, but it also failed to get thrown into the hopper.

AUSTIN SPRINGS

By Mrs. Carey Fields

Mr. and Mrs. Burnett Lintz spent Saturday in Mayfield, guests of their children, Mr. and Mrs. Billie McCollum, Lionel and Lori.

Mrs. Alga Watts of St. Louis has arrived for a visit with her sister, Mrs. Willie Ainley and Mr. Ainley. She will also visit with other relatives in this area.

Rev. James Holt filled his regular appointment at New Salem Baptist Church, which also opens the summer revival, taking for his reading Ephesians 4:22-24 as text scripture. Rev. L. W. Carlin is the visiting minister and arrived Sunday night. The services are held at 2 and 7:30 p. m. daily. The public is invited.

N. N. Harris is adding a new porch to his home nearby here, which adds very much to the appearance of the structure.

Mr. and Mrs. Artell Vincent and children will arrive this week on vacation with parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Vincent. They will visit other relatives here and in Mayfield.

Saturday, August 3, is the annual meeting at the Acree Cemetery. The business meeting opens at 10 a. m. to take care of the upkeep this year. Mr. Condon Mitchell has been keeping the grounds in neat shape, so any contribution will be appreciated by the committee in charge, with Mrs. LaVerne Windsor serving as secretary-treasurer. The memorial service will be held at 11 o'clock, after which basket lunch will be spread.

Many friends will be glad to know that Mrs. Mae Byars, operator of the Dukedom telephone system, is improving at Hillview Hospital, where she has spent several weeks undergoing treatment. We wish for her a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Dave Mathis isn't feeling quite so well at this writing, having suffered an attack of nausea. She has been in bed a portion of the time during the past few days.

At the Ray Robertson grocery in this village, on each Friday night, a public auction sale is held, with Rupert Ainley auctioneer. At this time all the citizens gather up surplus goods on their premises and offer for sale. This brings a fancy price and the farmers are able to get rid of items not in use.

The tenant house on Mrs. Joe Westbrook's farm burned several nights ago and was a total loss. Origin of the fire is unknown.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Doron and daughters Alicia and Lita Ann, of Huntsville, Ala., arrived Saturday afternoon for vacation with parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Doron, and other relatives near here.

Your writer is visiting in the home of her brother, Buton Laster, and family and also seeing a lot of friends of former years. Having a nice visit around the area.

Outdoor Dramas At Four State Parks

The Value of Fairs

At this time of year I like to say a few words about fairs and the people who are in charge of them. Time has slipped by rather hurriedly this year and we find that fair time is here. Much of the season for fairs is yet to come and especially the really big ones.

Like so many other things of today, the fairs actually begin in the small community and county fairs. These then lead on to climax at the state level or national expositions.

Beginning with the community fair, there is much to be said in favor of these gatherings. Little does the fellow out of reach of such events, realize the amount of FREE work that various individuals and companies exert in planning, and managing the local shows. Having had personal experience with such fairs for over 14 years, and being in a position to visit many others, makes me realize more than ever, just what does go into the general make-up of fairs. Support your community event with your presence.

Next we leave the county or community fairs and proceed to the area or district fairs. This is where the best from every community is brought with added interesting exhibits and events to attract more people. Auto and horse racing will be found at District fairs too.

From there, the best are assembled across the state and regional or state fairs usually climax most events. Here, spirited competition is shown among exhibits and the association there creates friendships that have prevailed for many years.

The International Livestock Exposition usually tells all where the very best is found in meat livestock classes, and the Waterloo, Iowa dairy show holds true for dairy classes. Here the Grand Champions are true Champions of the times.

It is expensive and very time consuming, I know, but where in the world can you compete freely with your neighbor on this scale and show proof that your efforts are superior. So we must all admit that our system of competition by holding fairs is simply another great American custom. May we always preserve it and keep it on a high plane. Tradition, sure, for it is Democracy at work, 1963 style!

Prominent Dukedom Couple Married In Good Springs Church Ceremony

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Alford

Miss Judith Kaye McCall and Malcolm Eugene Alford exchanged wedding vows in a candlelight service at Good Springs Church on June 22 at 4 p. m., with the Rev. James Westbrooks performing the double ring ceremony.

Miss McCall is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Durrell McCall of Dukedom and Mr. Alford is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Alford, also of Dukedom.

Bouquets of white gladioli and white carnations graced the altar, which was backgrounded with greenery.

Miss Janice Sanderson of Mayfield presented a program of wedding music preceding the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose for her wedding a gown of silk organza over taffeta, designed in a colonial style, with fitted bodice and square neckline. She carried a bouquet of white carnations with satin streamers tied in love knots.

Mrs. Bonnie Gossum, of Pilot Oak, served as matron of honor. She wore a street length dress of yellow dacron cotton, with matching accessories, and carried a cascade bouquet of yellow carnations and daisies. Miss Tammy Holt, the flower girl, wore a pale blue dress with matching headpiece and shoes and carried a white basket tied with blue ribbons, from which she dropped carnation petals.

Mark Rose served as ring-bearer, carrying the rings atop a white satin, heart-shaped pillow. Larry Gossum attended the groom as best man, and ushers were Ricky Bailey and Jimmy Turbeville.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, following which the couple left for a Florida wedding trip. They are now making their home in Dukedom.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Mrs. Howell Jones and Patricia of Hickman, Mr. and Mrs. I. T. Byars of Michigan, Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt Bruce and Craig of Michigan, Mrs. Ronald Bynum of Waynesboro, Tennessee, Miss Joyce McCall, sister of the bride, with two friends, George Stintz and Marta Bointza from St. Louis.

Diary of Doin's

(Items gathered along Fulton's merryway for your pleasure and your scrapbook)

We've hit that middle of the summer slump. It's a little early for the dog days of August, whatever they are, but for the past several weeks there have been so hectic a dog's life would be a luxurious plateau for us. There was a time when the phrase "school days" had a nostalgic sound for us. If the gong doesn't sound pretty soon, there'll be more individuals than this diarist in a padded cell. We heard a friend say the other day: "I'm so tired of 'little people' I don't know what to do." The little people she had reference to were part of her own brood, who just happen to be the same age as our own brood... put them all together and the Foreign Legion would seem a sanctuary.

For nearly two weeks the eldest in our household was preparing for Boy Scout Camp of a week's duration. The utensils, clothing, sleeping and camping gear he had on his list took three adults doing double duty to accumulate.

"Four changes of clothing, sleeping bag, sheets, pillows, towels, soap, wash rag, tooth brush, tooth paste... etc., etc., etc." all of them having the connotation of keeping clean, healthful, and - restful. We checked, double checked and added another extra item here and there to make the lad look like a picture on the Boy Scout literature.

Dear Diary, believe us, it's things like this that answer the question as to why mothers get gray. Last Wednesday Fultonians in droves motored to Big Bear Camp to see their little darlings on visitors' day. We were invited to visit the boys' quarters, give them a big spic and span kiss and enjoy their modernized "roughing it."

We think that our Scout took a pretty dim view of our questions regarding personal appearance and such. He informed us that his troop had won the citation for camp tidiness so that there was not much else to do but wonder about the ground rules for judging. Don't misunderstand us. Camping must be fun... it has to be. Couldn't anybody be as contented and happy looking as all of them were if it wasn't.

The visitors' safari was good for us. It prepared us for what was to come... on Saturday. We were not disappointed. Somewhere in the duffle bag were three changes of clothing, not quite made available to our Scout for reasons known only to himself. Perhaps one of the reasons being that he couldn't get to them for the sticks, stones, loot and other outdoor memorabilia he had accumulated during his trip.

As for his physical being on his return the only thing we can say is that if there is a noxious weed, bush, tree or grass he didn't make contact with for some skin eruption, then we can say it does not grow in these parts. We are now buying rubbing alcohol in tank car lots, skin lotion in the same quantities and as for the detergents to clean his clothing... we simply think it cheaper to buy out Proctor and Gamble.

Dear Diary, do you think that next year we should send him to a dude ranch?

Well, we've given you the definition of a boy and a girl, now comes some literature we found along the way telling you what some writer has to say about the male member of the family. The definition of a mother may come along soon, but until it does, just ponder the frustrations mentioned above on the return of a Scout to his home fires.

Here's the "father image."

A FATHER is a person who is forced to endure childbirth without an anesthetic. He growls when he feels good and laughs very loud when he is scared half to death.

A father never feels entirely worthy of the worship in a child's eyes. He's never quite the hero his daughter thinks, never quite the man his son believes him to be. And this worries him sometimes. So he works too hard to try to smooth the rough places in the road of those of his own who will follow him.

A father is a person who goes to war sometimes, and would run the other way except that war is a part of his only important job in life—which is making the world better for his child than it has been for him.

Fathers grow older faster than people because they, in other words, have to stand at the train station and wave goodbye to the uniform that climbs aboard.

And, while mothers cry where it shows, fathers have to stand and beam—outside—and die inside.

Fathers are men who give daughters away to other men who aren't nearly good enough, so they can have children that are smarter than anybody's.

Fathers fight dragons almost daily. They hurry away from the breakfast table, off to the area that is sometimes called an office or a workshop.

There, with calloused, practiced hands they tackle the dragon with three heads—Weariness, Work, and Monotony. And they never quite win the fight but they never give up. Knights in shining armor, fathers in shiny trousers—there's little difference as they march away to each work day.

I don't know where Father goes when he dies but I've an idea that, after a good rest, wherever it is, he just won't sit on a cloud and wait for the girl he's loved and the children she bore. He'll be busy there, too—repairing the stairs, oiling the gates, improving the streets, smoothing the way.

Pioneer Heroism Walks The Stage In New Play "Home Is The Hunter"

The dramatic story of pioneer heroism and valor will spill across the stage of the amphitheater of Pioneer Memorial State Park at Harrodsburg, Kentucky this summer when the outdoor drama "Home is the Hunter" opens its ten week season on June 29.

Within a few yards of the amphitheater stage in what is perhaps Kentucky's earliest formal cemetery lie the remains of more than 500 of those brave men and women who dared the wilderness to carve out a civilization.

A cast of 38 professional performers under the direction of Dr. Samuel Selden of the University of California will present the drama which is being sponsored in the State built amphitheater by a non-profit educational corporation.

Among the prominent historical figures of the drama will be the names Daniel Boone, Thomas Jefferson and James Harrod. The actual story line will be carried by fictional characters, but all historical facts are being closely preserved in telling a romantic story of the independent pioneer's search for freedom.

Naturally the brutal elements and savage Indians will play a vital role in the play, but a large portion of the production is being staged with the folk music and dances of the pioneer - 1776 - period receiving the emphasis.

"Home is the Hunter" by Robert Emmett McDowell will open on June 29 in the Pioneer Memorial State Park at Harrodsburg, Kentucky with performances nightly through September 1. Additional information and reservations are available by writing to: Fort Harrod Drama Production, Home is the Hunter, Harrodsburg, Kentucky.

Neals Express Thanks To City For Kindness

Brother Harold Neal, minister at the Smith Street Church of Christ for the past three years, has tendered his resignation, preaching his last sermon at the church last Sunday, July 21.

Mr. and Mrs. Neal and son Scotty were honored by the church members with a picnic lunch following the Sunday morning service. They will leave Fulton on Thursday, August 1, going to Abilene, Texas, where Mr. Neal will enter Abilene Christian College for two years.

Mr. Neal has been active in civic and religious affairs during his stay in Fulton. During his pastorate, the Smith Street church was built. This summer he spent four weeks as director of a youth camp at Freed-Hardeman College and also held two meetings, one at Hohenwald, Tenn., and one at Christiansburg, Va.

In talking with Mrs. Neal, she informed this newspaper that their stay in Fulton has been most enjoyable and that they will always call Fulton home. They express this feeling because of the friendliness and kindness of the people here.

West Kentucky Vocational School In Paducah Serving Our County

Kentucky's "new look" in vocational education became even more noticeable recently when the first classes were held at the new West Kentucky State Vocational School in Paducah.

Under Kentucky's unique "area concept" of vocational education, the West Kentucky school serves Fulton County and seven other counties in the Purchase area.

Symbolic of the giant strides taken by the State in the field of vocational education since 1960, the strikingly beautiful new school cost some $600,000 to construct. It is part of an over-all $4 million construction program at State vocational schools.

Nine projects are included in the building program. Two have been completed and others are in various stages of planning or construction. Already completed are a $1 million facility at the Northern Kentucky State Vocational School in Covington and a $400,000 science building at the Mayo State Vocational School in Paintsville.

The State's network of 13 area vocational schools has been called "a model for others across the country" by Gov. Bert Combs. In addition to the schools at Paducah, Covington and Paintsville, others are located in Ashland, Lexington, Harlan, Hazard, Bowling Green, Madisonville, Owensboro, Somerset, and Jefferson County. There is a second school, the Tilghman Area Vocational School, in Paducah and the State has a working agreement with Ahrens Trade School in Louisville by which funds are provided to the school for conducting vocational education classes.

Kentucky has received national acclaim for its area concept of vocational education. Under the area concept, one school serves the high school students, out-of-school youth and adults of several counties.

The beautiful new building is situated adjacent to other buildings on the school's suburban campus. Its modernistic, two-story exterior design is emphasized by a combination of smooth-faced brick, stone paneling and wide expanses of glass.

On the inside, some 44,000 square feet of floor space has been

THIS WEST KENTUCKY Vocational School in Paducah, which cost $600,000, is part of an overall $4 million construction program at State Vocational schools. Its 44,000 square feet of floor space include 10 practical application laboratories, three classrooms, general offices and a cafeteria-grill. Courses taught there for an eight-county area—a barbering, divided into 10 practical application laboratories, three classrooms, general offices and a cafeteria-grill.

One of the most important advantages of the new facility is that it has enabled the school to expand its curriculum. Several trade and industrial courses, not offered in the old quarters, are being conducted in the new facility.

Courses now being taught include barbering, commercial cooking, tailoring, auto mechanics, appliance repair, drafting, and carpentry and woodwork.

The new facilities have resulted in increased enrollment, school director Howitt C. Mathis said. In addition to new courses, space and facilities are now available to expand the existing courses, he pointed out.

Currently the school has more than 250 students in the program. All but three of these are either out-of-school youth or veterans. They are charged fees ranging from $4 to $15 per month depending on age and type of course.

In addition to the regular courses, the West Kentucky school is participating in job retaining courses set up through the Federal Area Redevelopment Act.

The school maintains a staff of more than 25 full-time instructors and administrative personnel. Part-time instructors are also employed to teach A. R. A. classes.

Though the Paducah school has been traditionally thought of as the State Negro vocational school, this is a misconception, Mathis pointed out. The school has been integrated for more than 10 years.

Mathis believes the State's vocational education system is responsible for influencing many young men and women to further their education after high school graduation. "About 90 per cent of all our students are high school graduates," he said.

A vocational school is located within 50 miles of every citizen in Kentucky, State Education Department officials point out. At least 16,000 Kentuckians are currently taking advantage of some part of the program.

commercial cooking, tailoring, auto mechanics, auto body work, electronics, appliance repair, drafting and carpentry and woodwork. On the same side of the street is a girls' dormitory built in 1953, and across the street is the boys' dormitory in the original building occupied by the school in 1938.

Enroute to her recovery point, Harwood's crew trained for recovery operations in the event that the astronaut's flight ended in the Atlantic.

On the sixteenth of May, after the Mercury flight was over, Harwood headed west to Bermuda. She refueled in Bermuda three days later.

The following day the Harwood proceeded 150 miles south to act as half the seaborne recovery force for an unmanned research rocket launched from Wallops Island, Va.

After two delays the shot was made; one day later the Harwood began her return to Mayport, after participating in two missile operations in one month!

Harry Barry Warns Against Danger Of Ticks In Summer Time Outings

Ticks may be a special menace to campers, hikers, picnickers, and to others who participate in outdoor summertime activities, Harry Barry, R. S. Sanitarian of the Fulton County Health Department, said today.

There are approximately 75 species of ticks in the 50 states. These ticks sometimes carry a disease known as Rocky Mountain spotted fever. This disease is particularly prevalent in Rocky Mountain and Middle Atlantic seaboard states, Mr. Barry said.

Kentucky had four reported cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever in 1961; seven in 1962, and four cases have already been reported for 1963.

The four cases this year, Mr. Barry said, have occurred in Owen, Henderson, Boone, and Hardin counties.

Ordinarily Rocky Mountain fever is contracted through the bite of an infected tick, but sometimes contact with the tick's feces may lead to man's infection.

One attack of Rocky Mountain spotted fever confers immunity which unfortunately is not always permanent. Protective vaccines can be given by a physician to persons working in tick infested areas, Mr. Barry added.

Persons with Rocky Mountain spotted fever experience a fever which ordinarily lasts for two weeks and is accompanied by a headache and a rash. With prompt treatment death is uncommon, however, without medical assistance fatality is about 20 percent.

Mr. Barry said that rabbits, field mice, dogs, and cats, as well as ticks, are reservoirs and sources of infection. Avoid tick infested areas such as woods and fields, Mr. Barry warned. He added that ticks should be removed from a person as promptly as possible without crushing, and the hands should be protected when removing ticks from animals.

A few simple precautions may protect much of the body from possible tick attachment. Mr. Barry suggests high boots, pants legs tucked in, shirt sleeves and collars buttoned, and repellent used on exposed skin surfaces to hinder this attachment. The necessary periodical checks for ticks are also easier then less body surface is exposed.

Measures for reducing the tick population, Mr. Barry said, are generally impractical, but clearing land, reducing small wild mammal populations, stray dog control, and removing ticks from livestock may be helpful.

Music Majors Can Earn Degree At UT, Martin Branch, Meek Reveals

Music majors will be able to earn a degree in the Department of Education at The University of Tennessee Martin Branch in the fall of 1963, Vice President Paul Meek has announced.

The new degree, recently approved by the U-T Knoxville Senate, will prepare students for teaching music and directing band and chorus in elementary and high school. Since all freshmen and sophomore courses for this degree are already being offered at UTMB, junior courses will be offered in 1965 and senior courses in 1966. Music majors entering in the fall of 1963 will be ready for graduation in the spring of 1967.

Three programs for the new music major will be offered, vocal, instrumental and a combination of the two.

In addition to the supporting liberal arts courses and the courses in education, the student majoring in music will take courses in the teaching of music in choral methods and materials, conducting and orchestration, as well as the basic music theory and history courses.

The program also offers all the basic courses for the freshman and sophomore years leading toward the bachelor of music degree or the bachelor of arts degree with a music major.

Seventeen new courses will be added to the music offerings at UTMB in order to provide for the requirements for the music education degree. The music faculty will be expanded to provide specialists for the teaching of the various courses to be added.

A number of students has already pre-registered for the music education program, and scholarships have been provided for some of them, according to Miss Harriet Fulton, head of the Music Section at UTMB.

Chiropractor Is Host To First District Meet

The July meeting of the members of the First District, Kentucky Association of Chiropractors and Auxiliaries was held at Park Terrace Restaurant with Dr. and Mrs. Virgil Barker hosting the meeting. In attendance were doctors from Wickliffe, Mayfield, Clinton, Paducah, Fulton and Murray.

After a buffet dinner and a variety musical program presented by Mrs. Nelson Tripp and some of her students, the business session was presided over by Dr. Virgil Barker, president. Dr. Paul Parrott of Mayfield gave an interesting report on the National Chiropractors Convention held in Chicago.

MRS. WILLIAMSON—

I get that "You drag me away from a good 30 year old movie on TV for this" look. Never fails. If I do go with the girls of the children the show is sure to be an Academy Award nomination, but let Mr. W. accompany me and it is a real smeller. The ads rave about it and we leave raving him at me.

After a few years with so much effort on my part, and having the outings backfire, I gave up as most wives do. It is an unwritten law that men, if they had their druthers, would not attend shows, movies or plays.

Little did I dream I would ever get Mr. W. to attend "Stars in My Crown." I figured if I made him go with my pouts and tears the show would turn out a clinker like all the movies I had forced him to attend.

Even patriotic benevolences as "You should go." "It's your civic duty." "I would be ashamed not to attend," do no good with men when they do.

Taking a deep breath I announced, "We are going to see 'Stars in My Crown,' and I just dare you to say no."

"Name the night," he answered pleasantly, as I nearly fell over into a dead faint. Secretly he was praying for rain.

I was on pins and needles I was so afraid something would go wrong. I almost goofed it completely. For other misguided women, if there are any others as daft as I, the amphitheater is NOT at the Dam Village. It is at Kenlake. I only caused us to go 40 miles out of the way.

He didn't actually say too much that I had misdirected him. Just something to the effect that he knew better than to follow my directions. He kept mumbling something about his being stupid not to find out for himself. But as long as he mumbles to himself instead of yelling at me I am undaunted.

We had dinner at Kenlake Hotel, with the finest most efficient service you have ever seen and the dining room was packed with theater parties. They are ready for the people with the service and delicious food.

Then another mishap reared its head and of course Mr. W. held me personally responsible. The announcement was made that Billy Ed Wheeler would not be playing. Mr. Rivers that evening, I scooted down in my seat while Mr. W. made his scathing remarks. I tried to be brave with all sorts of chit-chat. I just had an ominous feeling that this show would be the same old thing. Nothing was running right, which was true to form. I had flubbed again.

Then in a hush our West Kentucky story began. For two and one half hours the full house sat engrossed.

At intermission we quibbled over who was going to read the program. Mr. W. wanted to read every word of it, and the last book he read for pleasure was one of Mickey Spillane's back in '53. This show had him hooked.

All the reviews on the show are correct. It is good. It should be. It is staked and acted by one of the best educated groups in the country, in one of the most beautiful spots and has an unparalleled heritage for a story.

We have finally found something to talk about instead of the children, bills, and boats.

It is exciting to discuss our reactions to different characters and how they portrayed their roles. Kendall Dingman Jr. did an excellent Mr. Rivers. I should have had no fears.

We are having a spell of togetherness in discussing something that was unusually impres-sives to us both.

So, ladies, if you have an anti-show spouse and you must drag him by the heels to movies or shows, make one last drag and get him to take you to see "Stars in My Crown." When it is over he will thank you for insisting. It should be seen.

couldn't go around telling the folks on Commercial Avenue why I was carrying such equipment. If they came in I showed them. The Department of Parks was nice enough to send me, for sentimental reasons, all properly engraved, the shovel used to dig the first bit of ground on which the Kenlake Amphitheatre is located. It would have been nice for them to send me a miniature one so that I could wear it on my lapel. But wouldn't I look a wee bit odd with a four-foot, ten-pound steel and wooden shovel hanging from a dainty chain around my neck?

Anyhow here's why the newspaper business is called the Fourth Estate.

In England, the first three estates were lords spiritual, lords temporal, and commons; or, to put it another way, church, nobility, and gentry.

The press was dubbed the fourth estate by Lord Thomas B. Macaulay, 1800-59, the distinguished historian, essayist, and politician. He was making a speech in the House of Commons one day when, pointing to the press box, he said: "The gallery in which the reporters sit has become a fourth estate of the realm."

Rucker Raises Giant Cucumbers

When Raymond Rucker of South Fulton raises cucumbers, he doesn't fool around about it.

He raises cucumbers so big that one alone does the family for several days; or, when he gets hungry enough for 'em, he can make a whole meal out of one.

A sample of his product was brought to The News office Wednesday morning by Mrs. Norman Jonakin. The giant measured 12 inches in length and ten inches around at the middle.

Mr. Rucker lives in South Fulton with his sister, Mrs. R. L. Jonakin.

Governor Calls Between-The-Lakes Plan Challenge To Optimistic Imagination

President Kennedy's authorization for development of Western Kentucky's between-the-lakes section as a national recreation area has been termed by Gov. Bert Combs an opportunity "so immense it challenges even the most optimistic imagination."

He described the tourist trade as one of Kentucky's great economic hopes. And, he continued, recreational facilities are one of the foundation blocks for the tourist industry.

President Kennedy approved the proposal for the model national recreation area June 14. He authorized the Tennessee Valley Authority to proceed with development of the 170,000-acre wilderness land between Kentucky Lake on the Tennessee River and soon-to-be completed Barkley Lake on the Cumberland.

Two thirds of the site, from six to 12 miles wide and about 40 miles long, lies in Trigg and Lyon counties in Western Kentucky. The rest is in Tennessee's Stewart County. In approving the project, President Kennedy pointed out that the area is within 200 miles of nearly 10 million people in the Midwest.

Almost half the land in the proposed area is already the property of three Federal Government agencies—T. V. A., Department of Interior and Army Corps of Engineers. T. V. A. officials have estimated the cost of acquiring the remainder of the land as high as $10-12 million.

Combs called the Federal plan a "perfect complement" to the program the State undertook in 1961 to expand and improve State park facilities. Chief points of interest in that program have been the $19.9 million construction blueprint, an intensified effort to advertise and promote Kentucky's historical and scenic attractions, and a program of supervised recreation now described as the nation's best.

According to Dr. Lewis C. Copeland, University of Tennessee economist who prepares an annual travel survey for Kentucky, the State program is paying dividends.

He reported that out-of-state tourist spending during 1962 took a $12 million leap upward—from $193 million in 1961 to $205 million last year.

Dr. Copeland's study also showed that visitors from other states paid more than $17 1-2 million in taxes in 1962.

A political expert is a guesser who can tell why any election went its way.
